NEWSWEEK CORRESPONDENT
TO LECTURE AT SALVE

Jayne Brumley, Newsweek's Boston bureau political analyst, will lecture Thursday, March 2, at 7:30 p.m. in Ochre Court as part of Salve Regina College's Cultural Series/67. Her lecture on the role of the press will be followed by open discussion.

Sponsored by the International Relations Club, Mrs. Brumley appears by special arrangement with Newsweek on Campus, a special service providing Newsweek staff members for on campus appearances.

Mrs. Brumley has been with Newsweek since 1958 when she joined the magazine as a stringer in Florida. In 1963 she became a full-time reporter covering the Boston area, and in 1964 organized the Boston bureau and was appointed its first bureau chief. Two years later she assumed her present position as a correspondent specializing in coverage of New England politics.

Articles bearing her by-line have appeared in numerous national magazines, including the Saturday Evening Post and the Ladies' Home Journal.

A native of Boston, Mrs. Brumley is married to Calvin E. Brumley, New England bureau chief for the Wall Street Journal.
